FIVE PARTS OF COLLEGE TRANSITION

SOCIAL  EMOTIONAL  PHYSICAL  FINANCIAL  ACADEMIC

YOUR QUESTION OR CONCERN:

PEOPLE: Who are the FIVE people who can answer my questions and address my concerns? These are people who are paid to help me, who volunteer to help me, or who I can ask to help me. I can find these people on campus websites, through admissions offices, academic offices, high school alumni groups, campus clubs, organizations, student support services, family, friends, and via social networks.

#1 Current college students (campus leaders, student ambassadors, members of clubs and organizations)
#2 Faculty and staff on campus (admissions contacts, counselors, instructors, department heads, support services, grad students)
#3 High school counselors, high school teachers, independent consultants, spiritual leaders, community leaders, doctors, therapists, mentors, trusted adults
#4 Parents, family members, friends, alumni, relatives, and friends of friends (who are positive, credible, and successful)
#5 Online resources, campus websites, forums, Facebook, Twitter, LinkedIn, Instagram, and other social networks

PLACES: Where are the THREE places on campus where I can find connections, support, and answers? I’ll look for places where people are living the life I want to live on campus. I’ll look in places where people like me learn, lead, live, sweat, play, and pray. I’ll use my five people, campus resources, and online resources to guide me to the right places on campus.

Place #1- School sponsored activities, organizations, and resources where all students have access (recognized clubs, activities, academic orgs, spiritual orgs, athletics, volunteer orgs, support groups, etc.)
Place #2- School sponsored activities, organizations, and resources where you must be selected to have access (recognized clubs, activities, academic orgs, spiritual orgs, athletics, volunteer orgs, support groups, etc.)
Place #3- Places where students learn, lead, live, work, sweat, play, and pray (classrooms, residence halls, spiritual centers, student center, academic resource center, health center, academic offices, gym/rec center, advising office, dining hall, financial aid office, etc.)

PATIENCE: For each question or concern, I need to know how long it will take for me to find answers. I’ll ask the people in my places the following three questions to help me create a realistic timeline so I can be patient and not panic.

How long will it take me to find answers?
What can I do to speed up the process?
Is there anyone else I can reach out to or any additional resources that can help me find answers?
